President Grover Cleveland and His Chosen Counselors.

Some of Their Personal Characteristics and Good Qualities

As Described by Writers Who Know Them.

CLEVELAND AND STEVENSON.

Brief Biographical Sketch of the President and Vice President.
Grover Cleveland was born in Caldwell, N. J., on the 18th of March, 1837. His educational opportunities were at that time limited, and when fourteen years old he removed with his parents to Fayetteville, N. Y., where he began his career as a clerk in a store. Then came an opportunity for Grover to attend a local academy, and it was here he received training that later in life led him to adopt the legal profession. Drifting westward, he became a student in a law office at Buffalo, N. Y., and in May, 1859, he was admitted to the bar. His industry and evident ability led to his appointment as assistant district attorney when only twenty-five years of age. Then followed in sequence of official terms of office his election to the post of sheriff of Erie county in 1870, mayor of Buffalo in 1881, governor of New York in 1882, president of the United States in 1884. He was nominated for a second term by the St. Louis convention, but was defeated by President Harrison by sixty-five electoral votes.

During the earlier part of his administration Mr. Cleveland was wedded to Miss Frances Folsom, of Buffalo, N. Y. The story of how the ex-president wooed and won his bride is somewhat romantic. She was the daughter of Cleveland's former law partner. It is said that Miss Folsom became engaged to Mr. Cleveland about the time he began his term as a resident. He had always held her in fond regard since the time he trotted her on his knee when she was a little girl. He treasured her picture all through the days of his bachelorhood. Frances Folsom Cleveland added vastly to the luster of Grover Cleveland's administration, endearing herself almost to the extent of being idolized by a large part of the American people. In October, 1891, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland. They named the child Ruth.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the nominee for vice president, is a resident of Bloomington, Ill. He was born in Christian County, Ky., October 23, 1835. He attended Center college at Danville, Ky., and when sixteen years of age removed with his father's family to Bloomington, Ill., where he studied law and was admitted to the bar. THE CABINET.

Points of Interest About the Men Who Will Be the President's Advisers.

The new cabinet is a Cleveland cabinet, and the president is responsible for every man in it. Physically it is one of the heaviest cabinets ever known. The combined weight of the president, the postmaster general and the secretary of the interior will be nearly one thousand pounds. Nearly every member is a lawyer by profession.

WALTER Q. GRESHAM.

Of all the men in high station in the west there are none more genial, unaffected and approachable than Judge Walter Q. Gresham. A man of the world, he prefers the quiet of his home, where he can entertain his friends, enjoy the society of his family and do the work he cannot take the time to do in his office in the government building. A skilled politician, he has the faculty of making and keeping friends and attracting the young men to him; he is willing to talk at all times when business is not occupying his attention, and yet when occasion demands it there is no man so hard to extract anything from.

The coming head of Mr. Cleveland's administration has been a man of action more than study, and yet he has found time for wide reading. His library at his house at No. 2083 Prairie avenue, Chicago, is well stocked, although it is not a large one by any means. He has a taste for the classics, but general literature is his main delight as a recreation. His college life having been short—one year at the Bloomington (Ind.) university—he could not have made much progress in classical lore, but he took advantage of the opportunities given him and did the best he could. He possesses a thorough and minute knowledge of the history of the country and the government, the measures of the various administrations, the great debates and the men who shaped and influenced the legislation of their day, many of whom are now forgotten. He has made a study of the relations of this country to foreign nations—a study which will be of peculiar benefit to him in his new field—the nature of the treaties in force and the government's diplomatic history. He has also been a careful and a thorough student of the decisions of Chief Justice Marshall.

John Griffin Carlisle. There was one man who, during the last national campaign, came to and went from the haunts of the democratic leaders almost as quietly as an apparition. It was John G. Carlisle. Grave of mien, almost noiseless of footstep, shunning public places and discouraging efforts to draw him into conversation, he seemed almost a political recluse.

He is of the Kentucky soil, Kentuckian. He was born September 5, 1835, in Campbell (now Kenton) county, of that state. He was a farmer's son. He had to start life with a common school education, a studious mind and an unswerving will. He improved his learning by study at home after following the plow. When he was still in his teens he taught school. His leisure time gave him an opportunity to read law books, and a year or two later he moved to Covington, Ky., and became a clerk in the law office of Gov. J. W. Stevenson.

Carlisle was twenty-three years old when he was admitted to the bar. He was already instructed in politics and when he was twenty-four years old he was elected a member of the lower house of the Kentucky legislature. He served there four terms. In 1864 he declined to be a presidential elector on the democratic ticket and in 1866 was elected state senator. Carlisle rose rapidly. He was reelected to the senate. He was a delegate at large to the national democratic convention which met in New York in 1868 and nominated Seymour for president. He was lieutenant governor of Kentucky from 1871 to 1875 and was one of the alternate Tilden electors at large from Kentucky in 1876.

Samuel J. Randall, whom he was to overcome, and whom he resembled in character, habits, disposition and most of all in build and facial appearance, was a power in congress when Mr. Carlisle was first elected. This was to the forty-fifth congress. Here he met two men who were to be his companions in many a hard-fought battle against the republicans and too often against their own party—Roger C. Mills, of Texas, and William R. Morrison, of Illinois. They were the "Three Guardsmen" of tariff reform. In the forty-sixth congress Carlisle, Mills and Morrison served side by side on the committee on ways and means. The friendship formed then has lasted until now. Randall was speaker, and when the democrats returned to power in the forty-eighth congress it was thought that he would be able to succeed himself, but the three guardsmen of tariff reform triumphed and Carlisle was elevated to the speakership. In congress, whether in the speaker's chair or not, Carlisle was a fixture. He was beloved in his state, and when Senator Beck died he was elected his successor. Had Carlisle refused the portfolio of the treasury and continued his friends in Washington society, ever since her husband went to congress, and she will shine as one of the ladies of the cabinet well. Mrs. Carlisle is a most gracious and accomplished lady. She has been a constant ornament to Washington society ever since her husband went to congress, and she will shine as one of the ladies of the cabinet well.

Richard Olney. Probably no man in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet has made so many sacrifices in taking a portfolio as Richard Olney. It is something to give up a law practice of the first Boston magnitude at that—and accept a salary of eight thousand dollars a year. Mr. Olney is probably in receipt of a larger income from his practice than any other New England lawyer. Great corporations pay great salaries. He is attorney for three of them. These are the Boston & Maine railroad, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad and the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad.

He is sixty-seven years old, and he is apparently in the prime of life and in the zenith of his career. When he was named the other day the usual query of the ignorant was made: "Who is Olney?" It was only the politicians who made it. There is scarcely a man in New England who does not know him by reputation, and he is known at the bar from ocean to ocean.

Mr. Olney descends from a "fighting" Baptist family. His ancestor implanted the church in America and other ancestors hewed their way through colonial wars. He is a quiet and studious man, and has given his time almost unceasingly to his profession ever since he was admitted to the bar and to law partnership with Judge Benjamin F. Thorne in 1859. Mr. Olney twice has refused to accept a place on the supreme bench of the state of Massachusetts. When the last vacancy occurred Gov. Russell was anxious to appoint him, but he declined. When the vacancy on the supreme bench occurred Mr. Olney's name was presented to Mr. Cleveland by Gen. Patrick A. Collins and other Bay state democrats. They would have been pleased with the appointment, but Mr. Cleveland gave it to Melville W. Fuller.

When Col. Lamont ran for clerk of Cortland county he was twenty-one years old. There was a republican majority of 1,600 against him, but he came within a few votes of being elected. He ran for the assembly the next year and again was only beaten a few votes. Mr. Tilden had him appointed to his place of deputy clerk and later he became chief clerk of the state department under John Bigelow. From 1875, when he was chairman of the state committee, until Mr. Cleveland went to Washington as president, Col. Lamont was an active figure in state politics.

Cleveland when he was elected governor sent for Lamont and spent some time with him in consultation about his inaugural address. He made the young politician his military secretary, and from that time he became "Col." Lamont. Few people know what the relations between Mr. Cleveland and Col. Lamont have been—how confidential and unreserved has been their intercourse. In many matters the president has altogether relied upon the tact and foresight of the younger man. Since Mr. Cleveland was first elected president friends say that their attitude toward each other has been rather that of political comrades than of president and secretary.

He has a charming family. Mrs. Lamont was Miss Julia Kinney, of Cortland county. He was married in 1874, and there are three children aged eleven, nine and four. Mrs. Lamont is a lady of great tact and rare personal charms of face and manner. She and Mrs. Cleveland are bosom friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lamont have accompanied the president and his wife on many trips, and the relations between Mrs. Lamont and the late Mrs. Whitney were as close and cordial as were those between their husbands. They live in West Seventy-second street, New York, just off the boulevard, in a home of magnificent coziness.

RICHARD OLNEY.

Wilson Shannon Bissell. Wilson Shannon Bissell, who is to be President Cleveland's postmaster general, is held in high esteem in Buffalo, politically, socially and professionally. As a democrat he has naturally been the representative of that wing of the party which has always believed in and stood up for Mr. Cleveland. He is of the strong, sturdy kind of democracy that never stoops to trickery, and deals in practical politics only in a clean way.

Mr. Bissell has lived in Buffalo for forty years. He went there with his parents when he was five years old. He went to Yale and graduated in 1869, and immediately thereafter began the study of law in the office of Laning, Cleveland & Folsom. The offices of this firm are located in the Wood block, at the corner of Main and Swan streets, a corner made known to the world through Mr. Cleveland's election as president. There Mr. Bissell served his apprenticeship to the law, was admitted to the bar and has there won fame and a comfortable fortune as a lawyer. The junior member of the firm with which he began to study law was the father of Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

Like his old friend, Mr. Cleveland, it was for years thought that he was a confirmed bachelor, but, as in a great many other things, people were wrong in their estimation of the man, and he is now not only a Benedict but also the father of a bright baby girl about the age of Ruth Cleveland. Mr. Bissell was married about four years ago. His wife was Louise Sturges, of Geneva, N. Y., where she belongs to an old and much respected family. She is an able musician, and when Mr. Bissell met her was engaged as a music teacher at the Buffalo seminary, the most stylish school for young women in that city. She is also a niece of Mrs. George J. Sicard, the wife of one of Mr. Bissell's partners. They say it was a case of love at first sight. Certain it is that the home life of Mr. and Mrs. Bissell is a very happy one.

Hilary A. Herbert. Mr. Cleveland surprised no one when he named Hilary A. Herbert for secretary of the navy. Indeed, surprise would have been in order had he named some one else.

A well known western democrat was sitting in democratic national headquarters at midnight of election night and said:

"I can name one member of the cabinet. It is Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama. He will be secretary of the navy, and he will carry out the ideas of the men who started out to create the new navy because he was one of them."

It is most fitting that Mr. Herbert should get the place. His mind ever since he first went to congress has been directed toward the navy. When the republicans had control of the house he was second on the committee of naval affairs, and when the democrats had control he was chairman.

Mr. Herbert is one of the best known men in Washington. He lives with his family at the Richmond. His home is at Montgomery. He was born in Laurensville, S. C., and is about fifty-five years old. He moved to Alabama with his father and settled in Greenville, Butler county. He was educated at the university of Virginia and became a lawyer.

He is the only man in the new cabinet who fought on the confederate side. He entered the army of the lost cause as a captain. He became colonel of the Eighth Alabama volunteers and was badly wounded at the battle of the Wilderness May 6, 1864. He resumed the practice of law and removed to Montgomery, where he ran for congress and was elected. His first term was in the forty-fifth congress.

The new secretary of the navy is a widower. He has three children, two daughters and a son. One of his daughters is married and the other lives with him in Washington. She is a beautiful girl and fond of society like her father.

Hoke Smith. Hoke Smith is above all things a family man. He is thoroughly devoted to his home. He cares but little for society in the general acceptance of the word and is but seldom seen at the various social functions that mark the gay season in Atlanta. In politics he is the same. Although Mr. Smith has been mixed up with the political affairs of the south since 1876, the hotel lobbies and other places to which politicians resort are almost unknown to him. When down town he is in his office; at all other times he is at his home, a large but unostentatious modern dwelling on West Peachtree street, surrounded by broad piazzas, with an extensive lawn in front, on which during the long summer afternoons Mr. Smith may be seen playing with his children.

He is but thirty-eight years old, having been born in 1855, on December 2, at Newton, N. C. He is from old Puritan and Cavalier stock, his family being among the first settlers of New England. His father, who is still living, was at that time at the head of an educational institution in Newton. Young Smith spent the first few years of his life as most boys do. His early educational training was under his father's direction. He was very fond of outdoor life, and during these years of his boyhood laid the foundation of the splendid physical constitution with which he is now blessed.

In 1883 he married the youngest daughter of Gen. T. R. R. Cobb, one of the most learned and purest jurists that the south has ever known, who was killed during the war. After his marriage Mr. Smith made for himself and his bride a home in Atlanta, and that home is noted as one of the most beautiful and lovely in the south.

Mr. Smith's chief characteristic is his determination. His will never is wavered. He enters into a thing with the determination to succeed, and he has always been successful. As a boy at school he would enter a grade composed of more advanced pupils than himself at the foot of the class. Before the term ended his determination to succeed invariably landed him at the top.

Mr. Smith first entered into politics in 1876, when he was made chairman of the Fulton county executive committee. In that year he was a very ardent supporter of Senator Colquhoun, who was an aspirant for gubernatorial honors. Mr. Colquhoun was elected. In the same year Mr. Smith supported Mr. Tilden for the presidency and worked unceasingly for his success.

If a salt water term can be applied to the great western land of prairie, the schooner "Julius Sterling Morton," the new secretary of agriculture, might be termed the stormy petrel of Nebraska politics.

Going west when barely twenty-one, he took up a good square mile of farming land near where he has since seen Nebraska City grow into a place of fifteen thousand inhabitants. He made the desert blossom. He found time to study law, but he seldom found time to practice it. In the law there was not enough action. To his energetic mind even the law lacked tangibility. He found time to start a newspaper. In this he was the pioneer of printing in Nebraska. The paper was the Nebraska News, issued from the old block house in Fort Kearny.

Mr. Morton might be termed the pioneer in politics in Nebraska. He became the secretary of the territory when it was made a territory. He was afterwards governor of the territory. Nebraska was admitted into the union in 1876, and Mr. Morton ran for governor on the democratic ticket. His especial aim was to secure the election of a democratic legislature. But he failed in both, and at the urgent request of his wife he did not run for office during her lifetime.

Mrs. Morton died in 1881. On her tombstone of Mrs. Morton he had carved also his own name and the names of his sons. "If either of you," said he, "does a dishonorable thing I will have his name chiseled off that stone."

Although sixty-one years old, Mr. Morton is a man of exceedingly vigorous personality. While not a cabinet heavy weight like Mr. Bissell or Mr. Smith, he is more than a middle weight.

WED. EVENING, MARCH 8.

CLEVELAND'S INAUGURAL.

The address with which Mr. Cleveland opened his second term Saturday takes high as a literary production. It is characterized throughout by the vigor of thought and clearness of statement which have marked all his public papers.

Very evidently Mr. Cleveland intended to make the inaugural a statement in brief of the policy he expects to pursue, and as such it ought to elicit general approval.

As a rule he keeps close to the lines of the democratic platform but he is perhaps somewhat more vigorous than the platform in denouncing what he calls the "madness of the spoils system." The number of spoilsmen who were appointed by Mr. Harrison justifies the emphasis given that subject, and it will be generally expected that Mr. Cleveland says that he will display even greater activity than he did before in removing spoilsmen from office to make room for capable and trustworthy democrats.

Though Mr. Cleveland seems to think that the country is suffering more from the Sherman act than it is from the McKinley bill and the system of trade prohibition it imposes on the people, he devotes a considerable portion of his inaugural to the subject of tariff reform, speaking with his usual force and clearness, and intimating in an unmistakable manner, that he is as much opposed to all unfair and monopolistic combinations now as he always was.

The policy he outlines is one through which he and all democrats can co-operate in carrying out the instructions given him in the party platform. The inaugural indicates that he may possibly find it expedient to call an extra session to repeal the Sherman act and to restore the free and equal coinage of gold and silver to which he and the party are pledged by the platform on which he was elected. He is not likely to do this if he thinks it can be postponed for the regular session, since to open his administration with work to which precedence would be given over the great democratic work of reforming the tariff might cause more or less embarrassment; but if the situation is as grave as he seems inclined to think it, he may count on the immediate help of the democratic party in repealing the Sherman act by a bill drawn in strict accordance with the pledge given at Chicago.

Congratulating Mr. Cleveland on the ability and patriotic purposes of his inaugural, the Tribune congratulates the country that the administration of the government is once more in safe hands. We expect to see the country prosper under his administration, and we believe that a new era in politics will date from the time marked by the clocks at Washington as he was being sworn in Saturday.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Sunday Ledger, a new paper born in the Ledger office at Murray, Ky., with Bid Reed as its father and Logan Curd its uncle. It's a bright young child and we hope the "spotted fever" will let it live long enough that it may develop into a brilliant grown-up man with power and influence.

When politicians begin to love justice, instead of seeking their own advantage without regard to justice, there will be an end at once and forever to the system under which members of legislatures whose seats have been contested are allowed to vote themselves in. Election contests should in all cases be submitted to the decision of the courts, and not to the legislatures. The recent narrow escape of Topeka from a desperate battle between the adherents of two rival parties emphasizes this truth.

Governor Brown has remitted the fine imposed on Hon. J. C. Gilbert of $25 at the last term of common pleas court by his honor D. G. Park.

The notorious Jim Miller of color, was shot and killed Monday morning at Murray, by Johnnie Glenn, colored. The trouble grew out of some of Miller's conduct towards Glenn's wife. As soon as the shooting was done Glenn skipped and has not been heard of since.

Badly Scared.

Capt. B. J. Roberts, of Benton, is applicant for the office of gauger and store keeper under the collector of internal revenue for this (the Owensboro) district. Capt. is a native Tennessean, being born and raised near Dresden, but has been a citizen of Kentucky for several years. He is a man well worthy in every respect the office he seeks, and we hope to see him the appointee.

The following card was received from the fever districts of Marshall county:

BENTON, KY., Feb. 22, 1893.
B. J. Roberts, Fulton, Ky., Dear Sir: The excitement is still high here. I guess half of the people are gone from town. We have had five deaths. Can't tell when you will be able to come. Yours
V. A. STILLEY.

From the above which was clipped from the Fulton Graphic, the readers of the Tribune will learn that Capt. Roberts is both scared and an applicant for the position of gauger and store keeper. We hope after he gets over his scare he may receive the appointment.

Mothers' Recommendation.
We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day. From personal experience we can say that it has broken up bad colds for our children.—Centerville, South Dakota, Citizen. 50c bottles for sale by R. H. Starks.

BRIENSBURG.

Our long silence has been on account of a dirth of news.

The denizens here are greatly excited on account of the spotted fever and most every body have their "grips," packed ready to leave at a moments notice. Should a case develop this town would be deserted in three hours time.

Rev. Butler, of Louisville, preached a series of very interesting sermons at the Christian church the past week.

With small-pox at Birmingham, spotted fever at Benton, Scale and Calvert City, and measles at Palma, while everybody here is hale and hearty, we feel that we have much to be thankful for.

A couple who live in the east part of town have not been getting along as husband and wife should, for some time. One day the past week they concluded to settle their difference in regular John Sullivan fashion. At the end of the fourth round the battle was declared a draw, the principals kissed and made up and once more the "white-winged angel" of peace hovered over that home.

It is rumored that a prominent merchant will shortly wed a beautiful young widow near town.

Mr. Jack Maddox, of Calvert City, is here visiting relatives.

Miss Lula Staton, of Coy, is here visiting friends and relatives.

Jas. Love, of Birmingham, candidate for the legislature, was here Saturday looking after his fences.

It is said that Esq. M. G. Nelson, of Olive, will soon announce himself a candidate for the legislature on the people's party ticket.

White caps are abroad in the land and several notices have been posted as a warning to some of the male population to go to work or "vamoose." YORICK.

To Get at the Facts

Regarding Hood's Sarsaparilla, ask the people who take this medicine, or read the testimonials often published in this paper. They will certainly convince you that Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses unequalled merit, and that Hood's cures.

Hood's pills cure constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal. They are the best family cathartic.

LEGISLATIVE.

WASHINGTON D. C., March 2.

"President Cleveland," said a democratic senator who was opposed to Mr. Cleveland's nomination and who is for that reason called by those who know no better an anti-Cleveland man, "never did a wiser thing than when he smashed precedent, which at times binds us all too closely, and announced his cabinet in advance of his inauguration. That must now be evident to even the most careless observer of things political, as reflected in congress. The opposition which invariably follows the announcement of a new cabinet has been given time to work itself out, and the result will be that the new administration will start out with the party which placed it in power in an unusually harmonious condition, and although there will be quite a number of individual disappointments as the distribution of patronage proceeds, I see nothing ahead that leads me to believe that this harmony will be seriously disturbed during Mr. Cleveland's administration." This senator declined to allow the use of his name, because he has no desire to be accused of giving President Cleveland "taffy," or of having his words construed into a bid for public pap.

The ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty is now considered doubtful, so doubtful that Mr. Harrison's friends in the senate are afraid to have it voted upon, lest it be rejected. The democrats, while not all opposed to annexation, are almost to a man opposed to ratifying this treaty at this time. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, is the only democratic senator who has made a speech in favor of immediate annexation, and his duties as one of the Behring sea arbitrators have called him to Paris. It is the general belief that no vote will be taken upon the treaty at this session. In that case President Cleveland may withdraw the treaty and direct that a new one be negotiated, if he favors annexation, or he may send a message to the senate recommending the ratification of the present treaty, if it meets his approval. If Mr. Cleveland wishes it the treaty will be acted upon by the senate when it meets in extra session to act upon his nominations, etc.

A fight is now on in the house, the result of which may be to force an early extra session of congress. It is being waged by the silver men against the Sherman bond amendment to the sundry civil bill, which the silver men are determined to defeat by filibustering or any other means at their disposal. If they succeed an extra session will have to be called.

Secretary Foster admitted to the house ways and means committee, before which he appeared Saturday, that his recent estimates of treasury receipts for the coming fiscal year were already proven to have been too high, and that his estimates of expenditures were at least $8,000,000 too low, and that he now regards a deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1894, as a certainty, unless means are devised to raise additional money, either by taxation or the issue of bonds. His estimates are, of course, based upon the present tariff laws, which it is needless to say will be considerably changed before July 1, 1894, unless the democratic administration and congress undergo a great change of mind on the subject, which is not probable.

Mr. Harrison is now willing that bonds shall be issued to increase the gold balance in the treasury, provided that Secretary Carlisle will assume the responsibility by requesting Secretary Foster to issue them. The bonds have been engraved and can be issued at a day's notice, but there is no probability that Secretary Carlisle will take any such responsibility before he becomes secretary of the treasury, and the making of such a suggestion by Mr. Harrison was nothing more nor less than pleading the baby act.

Prominent among the bills that will remain unacted upon at the close of the session will be Nicaragua canal bill.

In Grand Style.

When Mr. Cleveland arrived in Washington last Thursday evening he and his wife and daughter, Col. Lamont and Don M. Dickerson and their wives went to the Arlington hotel, where 13 rooms were engaged for their use until Saturday evening, when the inauguration ceremonies were over, they left for the white house, in which they are now located for a term of four years. The contract with the manager of the hotel Arlington was to the effect that Mr. Cleveland would pay the snug little sum of $495 per day for the board and lodging of the presidential party. Is this not grand style for people to enjoy? But he is now the president of the greatest nation on earth.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism; but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert, of New Brunswick, Ill.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right to day; and would insist on every one who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50c bottles for sale by R. H. Starks, druggist.

Democratic County Committees of First District.

At the meeting of the democratic state central committee in Louisville on February 22, a resolution was adopted looking to the complete reorganization of county committees, and the member of the state central committee for the First congressional district has been instructed by Chairman Carroll to look after the reorganization of the county committees in the 13 counties of this district. The undersigned hopes to visit many of the counties in pursuance of this instruction, but as it is required that all such committees be reported to a meeting of the state central committee at Louisville on March 23, it will be impossible to visit all the counties, and the various county chairmen are urged to get their committees and all interested democrats of the county together at the earliest possible date and proceed to organize said committees. The resolution of the state committee to which reference is made above, is as follows, and may be used as a guide in effecting a reorganization:

Resolved, That each member of this committee shall, at once, proceed to select a local committee for each county in his congressional district; the local committee to consist of one member from each voting precinct in the county, who shall be a resident of the precinct from and for which he is selected. The members of this committee will determine in such manner as they may see proper how to select a local committee for each county, and they will prepare and present to this committee at a meeting to be held March 23, 1893, a full list of local committees for each county in their respective districts.

It is earnestly requested that each member of this committee shall take a personal interest in discharging the duty imposed by this resolution, so that he may be able to report a committee composed of good democrats and good men for each county in his district.

The chairman will please report the names and addresses of the new committees to the undersigned as soon as the new organization is perfected and not later than March 20th.

"The Blood is the Life,"

Runs the old saying, and everything that ever makes part of any organ of the body must reach its place therein through the blood. Therefore, if the blood is purified and kept in good condition by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, it necessarily follows that the benefit of the medicine is imparted to every organ of the body. Can anything be simpler than the method by which this excellent medicine gives good health to all who will try it fairly and patiently?

Cholera in Pennsylvania.

Swickley, Penn.: We had an epidemic of cholera, as our physicians called it, in this place lately and I made a great hit with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I sold four dozen bottles of it in one week and have since sold nearly a gross. This Remedy did the work and was a big advertisement for me. Several persons who had been troubled with diarrhoea for two or three weeks were cured by a few doses of this medicine.

Two Cows Killed.

Last fall when the town trustees were grueling the streets R. A.
Morgan was made the general
"boss," and in order to facilitate work he went to Paducah and bought dynamite cartridges to tear down the gravel at the pit. After the work ended there were two of the cartridges left, which were put in an old barn near Clay Bean's.
Henry Thompson took one, and began picking at it, it went off and badly crippled him. The other lay in the barn awhile and finally one of his cows got hold of it and swallowed it. It remained in her for about a week, and one evening while Clay was feeding his cows, the one with the dynamite in her became a little unruly and he forgot himself and gave her a severe kick in the side, when the force of his foot caused the cartridge to explode and killed that cow and an other one standing near by. This so badly scared Mr. Bean that he fell on his back and cried for his wife to come at once, that he had a severe attack of spotted fever.
He was carried to the house and it was two days before he knew what did the work. Clay says he never wants any more dynamite cartridges brought nearer than Cairo.

How Water Freezes.

A scientific paper describes how the process of freezing is carried on in nature's alchemy. By means of two thermometers it is first ascertained that the temperature of the water at surface and at the bottom is respectively 48 and 50 degrees. A cold wind sweeps over the surface of the water, so that the temperature is suddenly reduced to, say, 44 degrees. By this reduction in temperature it contracts and becomes specifically heavier, sinking and displacing the comparatively light and warm water below, which rises to the surface, becomes cool below 44 degrees, and immediately falls, displacing the warmer water at the bottom, which in turn rises, gets cooled and falls, its place being again supplied by lighter and warmer water. And so the cooling and sinking processes go on, the upper thermometer always indicating the higher temperature, when suddenly the magic point, 39 degrees, is reached, when all movement at once ceases. The upper layer of water is still exposed to the cooling influence of the wind, and speedily falls in temperature, but still retains its place. The upper thermometer now shows that the water which surrounds it is being rapidly reduced in temperature, but the lower one remains stationary at 39 degrees. At this temperature water is heavier than at any other, and there, like a stone, it remains at the bottom, and as it is fully protected from outside influences by the mass of superincumbent water, its temperature remains very much at the same point. The water on top, however, having nothing to protect it, gets cooler and lighter every moment. Down thermometer goes to 37, 35 and 32 degrees, and then a slight breeze ripples the surface, and the next moment a thin sheet of ice spreads itself over all. The ice, however, is colder and lighter than the water, so that it floats on the surface and acts as a blanket, protecting the comparatively warm and heavy water below from being cooled. So that even during the severest winter only a comparatively thin superficial layer of ice is usually formed, and the greater part of the water remains unfrozen at the bottom.

Lincoln and the Office-Seeker.

It is well known that Mr. Cleveland has been for a year or two a student in his own manner of the career of Lincoln, and he is fond of hearing any thing which illustrates Lincoln's method. Therefore, it was with keen pleasure that the following anecdote, which I believe is entirely new, was listened to by him. He had been discussing the offices and the clamor of office-seekers, when a gentleman said to him: "Mr. Cleveland, I will tell you a story about Mr. Lincoln and an office-seeker which may contain a hint. In 1863, after the fall of Vicksburg, a man came to Mr. Lincoln seeking an office. He had known Mr. Lincoln very well in the early fifties, but had drifted south. He claimed to have been always a whig and a union man, although compelled to hide his sentiment until Vicksburg fell. He wanted an office and a good one, and he was very importunate. "At last Mr. Lincoln said to him: 'John, when I was a young man, about the time I first went to Springfield to live, I was invited to a dance, and I was very proud of the invitation. I remember that I bought a new hat, and a very good one, for it cost me more than any other hat I had ever bought, and I was very proud to wear it to the dance. Well, I enjoyed myself so much at this hop that I stayed very late about the last one to leave it I remember, and as I was ready to go, I said to the colored man who had charge of the coats and hats: 'Now, John, I wish you would bring me my hat.' He brought me a hat that had been worn for a long time, and was very rusty and shabby, and I said to him: 'This isn't my hat; I wore a new one,' and then he replied: 'Mr. Lincoln, the new ones were all gone two hours ago.' "The office-seeker did not catch the hint for a moment or two, but when he did he burst out laughing and said that he had forgotten that it was two years since Mr. Lincoln had any offices to give, and then he went away and Mr. Lincoln never saw him again."

Mr. Cleveland laughed heartily at this story and seemed to be greatly impressed with the fact shown by Mr. Lincoln in thus dealing with a persistent office-seeker.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

(Mayfield Monitor) Judge W. W. Robertson has so far recovered from his late protracted illness as to be able to be on the streets again.

Mr. Curt Covington has sold his interest in the dry goods firm of Duncan, Sanders & Co., and will retire from business for a season in order to regain his health.

Mr. Lee Elmore has retired from the race for the postmastership and the number of candidates is gradually narrowing until there are now only two or three.

Dr. E. A. Stevens was called to Marshall county last week to prescribe for a case of the spotted la grippa, which has caused so many deaths in that section of late.

Mrs. Martha Hammonds, of Marshall county, has been visiting here since last week. She fled from her home on account of the epidemic of spotted la grippa which has been causing so many deaths in her county during the past few weeks.

Mr. Rollie Sutherland, of Kaler, declares his intention of becoming a candidate for jailer, subject to the action of the democratic party.

Mr. Sutherland, if I remember right, was next to Mr. Curtis in the last race. Rollie Sutherland is an honest, clever, industrious and thorough-going man, and should he make the race and be elected, the confidence of the people will not be misplaced.

Mr. John H. Archer died at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. B. Coulter, in this city, on Saturday last, the 25th ult., of consumption, at the age of about 45 years. He had been suffering for many years, and death was no doubt a welcome visitor to him. His funeral took place Sunday morning, the services being held by Rev. P. M. Fitzgerald, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The burial was at the city cemetery. Mr. Archer was a quiet and unassuming gentleman, without a fault, as we know, and his death will be sincerely mourned by his relatives and friends.

Easy on the Office Tyrant. The young man had returned from his wedding trip and was again at his desk in the office.

It was the day after his return that the head of the department called him to his desk and said: "Now that you are married, I trust you will be considerate in your treatment of me!"

"Why, I don't understand you," exclaimed the young man in surprise.

"Oh, it's a little early, I know," admitted the head of the department, "but there's nothing like taking time by the forelock. I suppose you haven't been out late at night yet?"

"Certainly not, sir."

"And it's none of my business if you have. But when you do stay out some night be considerate; remember that I have a little reputation for fairness and humane treatment of the boys that I would like to hang on to. Don't tell your wife that you're sorry, but the inspired idiot at the office piled work upon you so fast that you had to work away into the night. Don't tell her that the slave-driver you work under gave you 30 cents supper money and told you that you would have to post all the books in the office before you quit for the night. Just get some other excuse, you know."

Elderly people remember their spring bitters with a shudder. The present generation have much to be thankful for, not the least of their blessings being such a pleasant and thoroughly effective spring medicine as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a health-restorer and health-maintainer.

The question in dispute between the republicans and populists in Kansas is so complicated that it is difficult to arrive at any positive conclusion as to the rights and wrongs of it. As the case stands at present, the law seems to be clearly on the side of the republicans, and, that being so, the conflict is likely to result in a temporary triumph for them. The ultimate settlement of the dispute will, however, rest with the people of Kansas, and not with the law courts.—N. Y. Witness

Like a Waterfall After the Grip

Tremendous Roaring in the Head—Pain in the Stomach.

"Two years ago I had a severe attack of the Grip, which left me in a terribly weak and debilitated condition. Last winter I had another attack and was again very badly off, my health nearly wrecked. My appetite was all gone, I had no strength, felt tired all the time, had disagreeable roaring noises in my head, like a waterfall. I also had severe headaches and severe sinking pains in my stomach. I took medicine without benefit, until having heard so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, I concluded to try it, and the result is very gratifying. All the disagreeable effects of the Grip are gone, I am free from pains and aches, and believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is surely curing my catarrh. I recommend it to all." GEO. W. COOK, St. Johnsbury, Vt.
